PRINCIPAL'S REPORT

Thankfully, the storm that was predicted to do great damage to the metropolitan area earlier this week was relatively subdued. Damage was, therefore, limited. In terms of the school, it made little impact and the small amount of damage had no impact on student learning.

The letter advising parents that the school may have had to close due to the damage or service failure was used if the worst case scenario developed. It was noted that many parents rang to confirm that school would go ahead. The SMS message that was released to confirm this took some time to arrive with parents due to the enhanced activity on the telephone network.

There were two important events last week – both on the same day, which was unfortunate, however unavoidable. The first was the induction ceremony for the Aboriginal Excellence Program (AEP) initiative and the second, the Term 2 concert. The AEP is being consolidated to improve educational outcomes for participants. The Education faculty of Edith Cowan University, through Dr Deb Callcott, assists the program through the provision of a mentor for each AEP participant.

The program is proudly supported by the mining company, Independence Group NL and the Chair of the Board, Mr Peter Bilbe, and the Company Secretary, Mr Terry Bourke, attended to induct new members. Independence Group NL provides financial support to participants and their families. The good will and support of Independence Group NL is very much valued. The good work of the AEP Co-ordinator, Dr Phil Paioff, is also acknowledged.

The Semester 1 Music Concert, in two parts, was a very enjoyable event. It was pleasing to see virtually full houses for both the Junior and Senior Concerts. The audience was treated to some very fine music making across vocal, jazz, small ensemble and larger groups such as the String Orchestra and Big Band. The effort of the school and SIM staff in delivering such a fine concert is appreciated. The concert was also marked for, yet again, wonderful assistance from many parent volunteers. This volunteer help, through picking up a range of jobs, enabled the staff to focus on student preparation and performance. The work of the members of the parent Music Support Committee, led by Ms Prue Griffin, is warmly acknowledged.

Student reports for Semester 1 are being finalised prior to posting. This is an enormous task but reports will be available for parents prior to the forthcoming reporting day. This will take place on Thursday, 5 July 2012. Also on that day, the school will again conduct a Careers Expo.

This has proven to be very popular with students and parents. A range of employers, industry groups and training providers will be establishing displays. Staff, at booths, will welcome the opportunity to outline career choices, entry to industries and training requirements. This will be in the library and will operate for much of the day.

The reporting component will commence at 9:00am and conclude at 7:00pm. Appointments are in 10 minute slots and can be made on-line. This booking system has been used successfully for several reporting periods. As it is not possible to place all teachers in one spot, if making appointments in both Middle School and Senior School "travel" time should be factored in to bookings. It is generally better to book appointments manually rather than rely on the automatic feature. The system will be available shortly. Personalised information as to the system will be provided shortly.

Next week will see the conclusion of Year 10 into Year 11 counselling. The school is committed to meeting with each family to chart Year 11 subject choices. It is imperative that students select courses wisely and ensure that they can achieve success. If too difficult a course is chosen, they may struggle and not be successful, which can have implications for post-school pathways.

Pictures in glossy travel magazines may show one side of Italy but they are nothing compared to the diverse and vibrant culture to be experienced in person.

My recent trip to Tuscany was a challenge, both to the mind and body, as I overcame the differences to my normal Australian lifestyle. We used trains to get our school tour group around to the cities of Florence, Siena and Pisa. They were like time travelling machines that could completely change the scenery in under an hour. Everywhere I went it felt like I was not an awestruck tourist but part of a tight-knit community.

The experiences I had, such as seeing the fake designer handbags, were unique and, unlike the handbags, could not be sold.

Florence was a sanctuary of intricate and rich architecture, with a deep history behind every nook and cranny. Michelangelo's David was an exceptional representation of what Florence and its lively people were all about. Such detail and precision even carried through to small things like slices of pizza, which were impeccably cut.

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC CHANNEL AUSTRALIAN GEOGRAPHY COMPETITION

National Geographic Channel - AUSTRALIAN GEOGRAPHY COMPETITION

The National Geographic Channel Australian Geography Competition attracts students from all over Australia – around 80,000 of them each year – so it's a real indicator of how well our students are doing in this important subject. The competition could only cover a small slice of the diverse subject of geography. This year's competition tested the students' understanding of topics such as natural disasters, sustainable energy, and countries in our region, and also skills such as interpreting information in statistics, maps and satellite images. Congratulations to the following students :

- Madison High distinction in the intermediate category of the Australian Geography Competition
- James High distinction in the intermediate category of the Australian Geography Competition
- Izaak High distinction in the intermediate category of the Australian Geography Competition
- Clare Distinction in the intermediate category of the Australian Geography Competition
